If you're looking for a program which will help you record and edit your captures, then it's time to try the Camtasia Studio 8 Builder Pro. This software is capable of producing high-quality videos and screenshots that can be used as screencasts or presentations. It makes life easy for people who want to make presentations directly from their screens without using external tools like Keynote or Power Point. To use the software, two things are required: having an installation of Windows (any version) and a webcam with a microphone. The installation is simple and quick and it will take you less than a couple of minutes. The installation process will also allow you to choose additional options. You can uncheck unneeded ones or add plugins for an extra fee. According to the official website, the software allows users to perform many different tasks: capturing video and screenshots, annotating videos, creating presentations and training material, recording their desktop activity and adding sounds and music tracks into their videos. When you open the application, you will see a screen with two tabs: "Record" and "Edit". These tabs correspond to the two major modes of working. The Record mode is used for capturing and editing your videos. The Edit mode is used for adding annotations, sounds and music tracks to your videos. For creating a new recording or recording your desktop activity, click on the red "Record" button at the bottom right corner of the window. This will display different options for creating a new recording: if you choose to record your screen, then it is necessary to select an application or open a website; however, you can also record sound or webcam activity if needed. There are also options for recording your screen with a specific program active on your computer. After choosing the desired option, click on the "Start Recording" button. To create an annotation over a recording, move to "Edit" mode. To do this, go to "Record" mode and select an existing recording. Then go back to the main window and click on the red button with three vertical lines in the top right corner of the screen. The software will automatically display additional controls for editing recordings. These controls allow you to edit videos by adding annotations over them or add sounds or music tracks into them. To add annotations, you must first create a new annotation by clicking on the red rectangle at the bottom of the window. This will display a new window which allows you to choose shapes, colors, fonts, size etc. of the annotation. After creating the annotation, simply move it over the video recording and resize it with your mouse. To be able to edit your recordings later on, open them in "Edit" mode by clicking on the "Edit" tab at the top left corner of the screen. With this tab is opened, you can edit your recordings by adding music or soundtracks into them or remove unwanted annotations. The software supports many input devices for capturing videos including webcams with microphones. As mentioned above, you can also record sound from your microphone or speakers connected to your computer.
